RCEA now nuke-curious

Daniel Mintz
MAD RIVER UNION
HUMBOLDT – Seeking to add to its range of carbon-free energy, the Redwood Coast Energy Authority (RCEA) is considering a nuclear option and its board of directors could take action on it Sept. 26.

Natalie Arroyo

The agency's board first discussed it last month and was told by staff a decision had to be made within weeks. If chosen, the nuclear power would come from the Diablo Canyon nuclear power plant in San Luis Obispo county.

Slated for decommissioning, the plant's operation has been extended to 2030 or beyond. Ratepayers are paying for it and now energy agencies have the option of getting power from the plant at no additional cost.

The authority is struggling to meet its 100 percent carbon-free and renewable energy goal.

At a late August meeting, RCEA account director Jaclyn Harr told the agency's board of directors that an added mix of nuclear and hydroelectric power could achieve the goal by 2025.

"The combination of those two gets you over the hump to 100 percent renewable plus carbon-free," she said.

New Arcata, McK bike projects get county OKs

Daniel Mintz
MAD RIVER UNION

HUMBOLDT – Humboldt County's Planning Commission has signed off on two bicycle-related projects in Arcata and McKinleyville, giving one a permit approval and the other a General Plan conformance clearance.

The commission supported the projects with unanimous approvals at its Sept. 19 meeting.

In Arcata, the California Department of Transportation (Caltrans) got permits to construct an eight-foot wide, 470-foot long bicycle path connecting Heindon Road with Wymore Road.

The connection point is at the Boyd Draw Bridge, which passes under U.S. Highway 101.

It's a safety-oriented project, allowing a direct travel path under the 101 instead of the current errant route via Giuntoli Lane. Senior Planner Cliff Johnson noted that bicyclists coming from McKinleyville will no longer need to navigate two Giuntoli Lane roundabouts.

But he also noted some public concerns.

Defunct Humboldt Bay billboard won't be rebuilt

Daniel Mintz
MAD RIVER UNION
HUMBOLDT – A controversial bid to re-erect a fallen Humboldt Bay billboard has been abandoned by the billboard's owner.

Owned by OutFront Media, which operates billboards nationwide, the damaged billboard is off U.S. Highway 101 south immediately adjacent to the Indianola Cutoff.

The billboard repair required permits from a number of agencies, including the county, the Harbor District and the California Department of Transportation.

The Harbor District required an environmental review of the rebuild at an Aug. 28 special meeting – but by that time, the billboard's owner, OutFront Media, had already given up on its plans.

Billboards along Humboldt Bay's shoreline are allowed to operate and be repaired even though new billboards aren't permissible.

Handsome cat-pal/family man Robbie; Theo finally fits in We've been having fun out and about at community events lately. This past weekend we participated in an adoption event just off the Plaza; thank you Coldwell Banker Sellers Realty! We had 10 dogs and puppies there and we couldn't have been more proud of their behavior.

As I've mentioned before (repeatedly, sorry), getting the dogs out of the shelter gives us so much useful information and lets us see a different side of them. There were quite a few people wandering over from the North Country Fair and the first of our dogs to arrive were feeling a little timid. Pretty soon the dogs realized there were treats and pets from the new people and then their shelter dog friends and volunteers started to arrive. It was a party! We had quite a few serious conversations about adoptions. Now we wait to see if the prospective adopters follow through. We sure hope so!

Leo and Stitch from last week's column were at the adoption event. They were the pros at this public thing as they are very social and had been at a different event the week before. Their friend Robbie was on his second weekend of being out and about and he was very comfortable also. Robbie spent the intervening week in a foster home and he has shown himself to be a real catch.

Handsome Robbie is estimated to be about eight months old. He is housebroken and gets along well with the other dogs in the home. Robbie has demonstrated that he's not just "OK" around cats; when he approached the cat in his foster home, it gave him a bat on the nose. The next thing we knew, cat and dog were snuggled in together on the bed!

Robbie walks nicely on the leash, barely ever barks, and is very affectionate. This fellow will make an amazing family dog! He was happy to have children pet him at both events. He has a cute way of just sitting down if he's not sure what else to do.

Robbie has been neutered, microchipped, and tested for heartworm. He is current on his vaccinations and ready to go home with a lucky adopter! Robbie is available through the Humboldt County Animal Shelter. Appointments and information is available at (707) 840-9132.

I got such a nice response to Joey's story that I will try and include more of those stories when I can. Some of you might remember our Redwood Pals Rescue dog Theo.

Theo was adopted and returned at the shelter. The reason for his return didn't quite fit what we had seen of Theo and so when we were told he had to leave or be put down, we chose to put him in boarding. We advertised him and did meet and greets but nothing seemed quite right. One dog didn't want to share their human with Theo, another couple hadn't conferred with each other before meeting us.

Theo was at the McKinleyville Animal Care Center and their wonderful staff never gave up on him either, even as the time stretched to more than two months of boarding. So when they gave us one last name for a prospective adopter, we sighed and followed through.

The initial meet went well. Shy Theo seemed particularly comfortable. Then we went to see if we could convince Theo to get in his truck. He hopped right in! We went to the adopter's home and hung out for awhile before sneaking out to give them a few hours to get to know each other.

When I went back several hours later to bring a few things, Theo was happy to see me but did not want to follow me out. He'd already met some other family members in the time I'd been gone and done great! Theo stayed that day and is still there now. Sometimes we just have to wait for the right person to come along.

Pick your favorite three 2024 candidates for Arcata City Council

Kevin L. Hoover

MAD RIVER UNION

ARCATA – Arcata voters have a range of disparate choices at hand with which to compose three-fifths of their next City Council. All have some sort of public track record, including actions in the office they’re seeking, public participation in politics and in other realms.

The lineup includes incumbents Stacy Atkins-Salazar, Sarah Schaefer and Alex Stillman, who are running as something of a slate; Gregory Daggett, a regular commenter and critic at council and Planning Commission meetings; Shea Freedomhowler, a longtime Arcata performing artist; Genevieve Serna, a member of the city’s Transportation Safety Committee; and Dana Quillman, a veteran of several previous council candidacies.

Enjoy these initial sketches of the seven candidates, and stay tuned for upcoming fora for more detailed looks at the candidates’ platforms.

Stacy Atkins-Salazar: Seasoned and set for four more effective years

Four eventful years of service on the Arcata City Council has seasoned small business owner and dance instructor Stacy Atkins-Salazar with a range of experiences that give her renewed focus for four more.

Toughened and focused by her service, she’s got little time for idle philosophizing. Instead, she dwells on a meaty list of projects delivered, others in progress and coming up that she wants to follow through with, alongside fellow incumbents Alex Stillman and Sarah Schaefer.

“One of the highlights of serving on council is getting to see the community I grew up in from the perspective of a councilmember,” she said. “Getting to know and serve the people of Arcata on a deeper level has been a privilege.”

If pressure makes diamonds, tough issues can bring good policy, Atkins-Salazar believes. Among the lessons she’s learned are the value of process and engagement, and the value of relationship-building among diverse constituencies.

“Helping our community find common ground on the more challenging issues has also been rewarding.” She cites as examples the RRIP (Residential Rental Inspection Program) and the STR (Short-term Rental ordinance).

Another accomplishment she’s proud of are Arcata’s popular Community Ambassadors. “As a response to ongoing concerns from community members and small business owners in and around the Plaza I proposed a Community Ambassador Program,”

Atkins-Salazar states. “I won support from fellow councilmembers and went on to help design the program which has made a positive impact on the Plaza and downtown area by helping visitors, unhoused people and business owners with a variety of needs while keeping our public spaces clean. I am now working to expand the program to other areas of Arcata, such as Valley West.”

She’s also proud of the Safe Parking Program, with over 55 percent of

Gregory Daggett: Citizen activist would engage from other side of dais

Anyone who has seen a City Council or Planning Commission meeting over the last several years has heard Gregory Daggett sharing his views on critical issues with the powers-that-be. Now, the artist/outdoorsman/citizen activist would like to work from within to head off the many gathering dark clouds – with so few silver linings – that loom in Arcata’s future.

Daggett offers a mixed message. His formal campaign outreach lists wholesome aspirations few could take issue with. “I am running to keep Arcata affordable for everyone, restore public safety, improve the local economy, and protect the financial well-being of our working families and students,” he states in his initial campaign news release.

In conversation though, Daggett’s comments take on a more aggressive tenor consistent with his acerbic oratory before the City Council and Planning Commission. In both cases, he believes City Hall has let the public down across the board – from public safety to housing, sea level rise, finance and more.

Traffic safety is one topic he’s persistently addressed with the powers that be, as well as vehicle noise. Yet his approach to solving this and other familiar complaints aired over the past two-and-a-half years remains surprising vague and inchoate.

“I think the council needs to be more involved,” he said. When possible processes are suggested, he says the Transportation Safety Committee could play a role, as could a possible task force or even an alternative, non-governmental body such as one that was at one time proposed to process the GAP, but not adopted.

“That’s an example of really going all out to trying to get the community involved,” he said.

Despite his call for more council involvement, Daggett considers city decisionmakers unqualified and inept. “There’s not a single person on there that’s even taken a class in planning in their life,” he claimed of the Planning Commission. “So they’re

Shea Freedomhowler

Shea Freedomhowler: One-man variety show aspires to a new stage

If you feel like there hasn’t been enough vaudeville at Arcata City Council meetings, Shea Freedomhowler may deserve your vote.

The multi-talented performing artist, caregiver and rental property owner has ideas about the fresh flavor of spirited leadership Arcata needs, and is ready for his close-up.

Why does a magician, juggler and cryptozoology enthusiast deserve a seat on the dais?

“Because I love our city, because I’ve been here a long time and I have the energy and enthusiasm to bring engagement and be a part of a greater part of the community,” Freedomhowler explains.

He’s not without governing experience. “I’ve been on councils for the dance center and a lot of the productions that I’ve been a part of,” he said. “The entertainment, the production and direction requires a lot of leadership and public speaking. And I think that there’s a lot of crossover between entertainment and politics in a way that I could help.”

He’d use the powers of office to make Arcata even more entertaining and youth-friendly. “I’d be supporting arts and entertainment,” he said. “Also education and youth. Since I’m out in the community so much, I would want to get engagement from the community and see what the opinions of the people are and be able to, you know, express a diverse sort of age group and demographics from Arcata and bring that to whatever issues are on the agenda.”

There’s a lot to be done, he believes. “Incorporating arts into all of the all the projects that Arcata is working on, incorporating art to engage the university students and sort of seeing the path that we can bring color and engagement to the students so that the community and the university work together,” he said.

As for deep policy matters, such

Sarah Schaefer

Sarah Schaefer: Lessons learned, skills honed, eager to move ahead

As busy as incumbent Councilmember Sarah Schaefer has been over the past four years with her City Council duties, that’s only part of the schoolteacher/elected leader’s daunting, self-assigned workload.

“I just finished my master’s and educational leadership and got my administrative credential,” she says with a mixture of pride and relief. “I did all that in one year while being on the City Council and working full-time.”

That, she said, should demonstrate her commitment to public service. “If if I can do all that, I’m really committed to the City Council.”

Asked to grade her performance in office, she gives herself a good, not great grade. “I don’t like to gloat, but I give myself a solid B, B+,” she said. “I’ve honed a lot of skills and if we’re grading on improvement, I would give myself like a solid A here.”

Why would she punish herself like that?

“I’m a teacher and I’m a lifelong learner and I love education,” she said. “I get bored if I’m not learning new things. And like the fact that I have gone from, you know, being a history teacher and having no knowledge about energy, for example, and like now I can tell you back in front of how RCEA [Redwood Coast Energy Authority] works, about all of their projects and I’m the chair of their board.”

The recent, hard-won milestone of Gateway Area Plan General Plan passage was an education in itself. “I was talking to one of my friends who’s an engineer at GHD and rattling all this stuff off about CEQA and how we’re going through this process,” she said. “She’s like, oh my God, look at you. It’s like you’re a planner or something.”

Addressing housing and homelessness will require all her newfound skills, with a regional approach required. “We’re asked a lot, ‘Why are there still so many homeless people? You guys said you were going to solve the homeless problem and look,

Genevieve Serna: Moving forward on housing, transport, town-gown

Genevieve Serna’s rising political star has wound through Cal Poly Humboldt, Arcata’s Transportation Safety Committee and next, she hopes, the City Council.

She’s already captured multiple endorsements from labor, environmental and political organizations that prefer her over incumbent Alex Stillman to round out the Stacy Atkins-Salazar/Sarah Schaefer progressive trifecta.

Serna’s polished, well-organized website lists her three key issues, from which so many others flow: housing, solution, transportation safety and “unity” between city and Cal Poly Humboldt communities.

Going against the rhetorical grain at City Council and Planning Commission meetings often dominated by critical public comments, Serna stood up for the Gateway Area Plan and General Plan 2045 on several occasions, urging adoption of pragmatic solutions to the housing crisis. Now, she says, there’s more to do.

“I would hope to have an opportunity to find more funding to support things like emergency and transitional housing,” she said.

She’d like to track the success of Arcata’s Project Homekey and Safe Parking programs, and maintain support if merited. “That sort of thing is is really critical,” she said. Toward that end, she supports Measure H, the 3/4¢ sales tax proposal that would maintain Safe parking, Community Ambassadors and more.

ADUs provide part of the housing solution, she believes. “But there needs to be more than that that,” Serna said. “It’s not that one kind of solution thing is going to give us the golden ticket we’re looking for. It’s one piece in the larger picture of the kind of the zoning that needs to get updated and evolve a little bit to see the increase in housing that I think the city really needs.”

Transportation-wise, she wants to

Alex Stillman
Instagram: AlexforArcata2024

Alex Stillman: Arcata’s most experienced leader still has more to do

Sixteen total years of service on the Arcata City Council has only whetted Alex Stillman’s appetite for four more. The woman who broke the glass ceiling in 1972, was elected again in 2006 and 2022 had originally planned to step down for good this year.

In 2022, Stillman ran as a “bridge” candidate – helping an inexperienced but eager set of neophyte colleagues ease into the future with the solid foundation of her more than 50 years of Arcata City Council and community service.

“I have a lot of forward-thinking ideas and because of the my past experience, it would be good for me to be on the council to move those forward,” she said. “I didn’t realize that in two years I’d be able to accomplish so much that I was able to do with the thought of what we can accomplish in the next four years.”

While Stillman’s progressive ideas upset the applecart in the 1970s, she still manages to be merrily audacious. Her recent suggestion that Arcata and McKinleyville merge raised eyebrows and heart rates all over the greater NoHum-sphere, and she revels at being ahead of the curve with her strong support for the Reconnecting Arcata land bridge and advocacy for multi-story mass timber structures.

But most of Stillman’s energy goes into routine problem solving – connecting problems with solutions, guided by her vision for Arcata. While she couldn’t vote on the Gateway Area Plan, she’s now looking at how it can be best implemented.

“Gateway gives us an opportunity to have a population that’s within walking distance of downtown,” she said. She has confidence in the Standards of Coverage study now in progress, assessing fire-fighting capabilities, needs and financing. “I believe as far as the concerns of the fire district or at least so from our board representative in our area, that these issues will be addressed,” Stillman said.

Dana Quillman: Calling out complacency over cruel conspiracies

In a town full of people who think they think different, Dana Quillman thinks way differenter – about as different as may be humanly possible.

Quillman has been ringing alarm bells about imminent threats to life and liberty for decades, and would like to elevate her concerns to official business on the Arcata City Council.

She doesn’t think that will happen on her fourth run for City Council, having lost by significant margins in 2006 and twice in 2022. But winning office is something of a secondary goal. She’s unabashed about using her political candidacy to help her break through what she says is censorship of her urgent messaging about the looming onset of global tyranny.

“I care about my city, I care about my county, I care about my state, I care about my country, I care about our world,” Quillman said. “And I’m not happy with the way the world is. Instead of sitting around and complaining about it, I’m going to try and do my share to change it in the way that I think it needs to be changed.”

Her priorities – outlined in stentorian capital letters on her Venusian Triad astrology website – list any number of fearful conspiracies, from depopulation to chemtrails to the sinister intentions behind the Gateway Area Plan. At the page’s top, a headline reads, “OUR COMMON ENEMIES - U.N.-NATO-WEF/DAVOS-WHO-THEIR GOAL: A ONE-WORLD GOVERNMENT & DEPOPULATION USING

WAR & PLANDEMICS!”

Asked about any initiatives she’d mount as a councilmember, Quillman goes right to community water fluoridation, in place in Arcata since about 1962. “I’d get it out of our public water,” she said.

She’d also like to establish an “opportunity village” in north Arcata to help shelter the unhoused – far from a radical idea.

But in most cases, even with ques

‘Migrations: Walking Together’ – a 5-mile Arcata art walk this Saturday

In 2020 Laura Muñoz was tapped to coordinate the Playhouse Arts Round Story Project, examining the changing demographics of our area through a social justice and racial equity lens.

When the pandemic had shut down in person gatherings for months, she asked herself: “How about an outdoor festival lifting up and celebrating the many cultures that have not been visible in our country.”

That was the genesis of “Migrations: Walking Together,” an original, multi-disciplinary, multicultural project that offers dance, movement, storytelling, puppetry, music, and poetry.

Laura is a migrant herself and is very experienced with walks and procession. “When you walk with people, time changes,” she says. “You see more and notice more. There is a shared experience that is both simple and profound. The rhythm changes. You slow down, witnessing and experiencing the changes of texture from asphalt to grass.”

On Saturday, Sept. 28, Playhouse Arts will host the fourth annual “Migrations: Walking Together.” The festivities will begin at Valley West Park on Hallen Drive at 9 a.m. and end at the Arcata Community Forest around 2:30 p.m. with a community potluck. The five-mile walking route stops at several locations along the way where diverse cultural groups, organizations and artists will share their work, play, artistry and culture.

The scope of the offerings is breathtaking, and includes Centro Del Pueblo, the Yurok Wellness Coalition, Humboldt Taiko, Humboldt Lao Dancers, the Northcoast Environmental Center, the Blue Lake Choir, Ra and others,

Those who choose not to walk the whole route are welcome to drop in for a performance or two hosted by these local organizations and artists. The locations of each individual performance are listed at the end of this column.

In a procession like this, solidarity grows amongst participants as they walk together, uniting them in a shared journey. The foot travels in human time, not the mechanical time of an automobile. This connects us to Mother Earth and to those who walked before us. Art is also a connector, helping us listen to new ideas more easily and to develop a deeper understanding of our individual humanity and connection to each other and the entire web of life.

“Migrations: Walking Together” invites us to examine who we are through the lens of local and international migrations in Humboldt and to find the connective tissue that binds us.

It also invites us to confront the systemic inequities and history that have driven us to this point. Not from a place of blame and shame, but as a way to to empathize and to be inspired to change the narrative.

Salmon will be a central component of “Migrations” this year. A giant salmon puppet crafted and designed by local artists from both Playhouse Arts and Trajectory will be on hand. Many regional Indigenous People refer to themselves as “Salmon People,” because salmon is a central part of their identity and culture. Salmon are a gift from the Creator and are valued as not only food sources but as cherished relatives.

Their own migration is poignant– they are born in a particular river or stream, migrate to the ocean, and migrate back to the river or stream of their birth to reproduce. Centering Salmon this year is especially relevant with the undamming of local rivers.

“I’m so moved by the color of our community,” says Muñoz. “The fabric we create and keep weaving is so rich here with our roots on native land. If you are not from here, you are a migrant. The birds and the whales migrate. We live in the path of migratory birds. The politics of society are complicated, but for the animal world, it is a natural dynamic.”

WIGI WETLANDS WORKDAY Join Redwood Region Audubon Society on Saturday, Sept. 28, from 9 to 11 a.m. for a Wigi Wetlands Volunteer Workday. Help create bird-friendly native habitats and restore a section of the bay trail by removing invasive plants and trash. The trail section is located behind the Bayshore Mall and volunteers will meet in the parking lot directly behind Walmart. We will provide tools, gloves, and packaged snacks. Please bring drinking water. Contact Susan Penn susanpenn60@gmail.com for more information.

BRING YOUR BINOCULARS Join Redwood Region Audubon Society for a free guided field trip at the Arcata Marsh and Wildlife Sanctuary on Saturday, Sept. 28 from 8:30 to 11 a.m. Bring your binoculars and meet trip leader Mark Colwell at the end of South I Street (Klopp Lake) in Arcata for incredible views of Humboldt Bay, easy-to-walk trails, and a great diversity of birdlife. September marks the beginning of many migrants' journeys so come observe and enjoy the migratory behaviors and feeding frenzies that will likely be encountered!

MARSH TOUR Friends of the Arcata Marsh (FOAM) is sponsoring a free tour of the Arcata Marsh & Wildlife Sanctuary on Saturday, Sept. 28. Meet leader Sharon Levy at 2 p.m. in the lobby of the Interpretive Center (AMIC) on South G Street for a 90-minute, rain-or-shine walk focusing on Marsh history, ecology and how wetlands clean polluted water. (707) 826-2359.

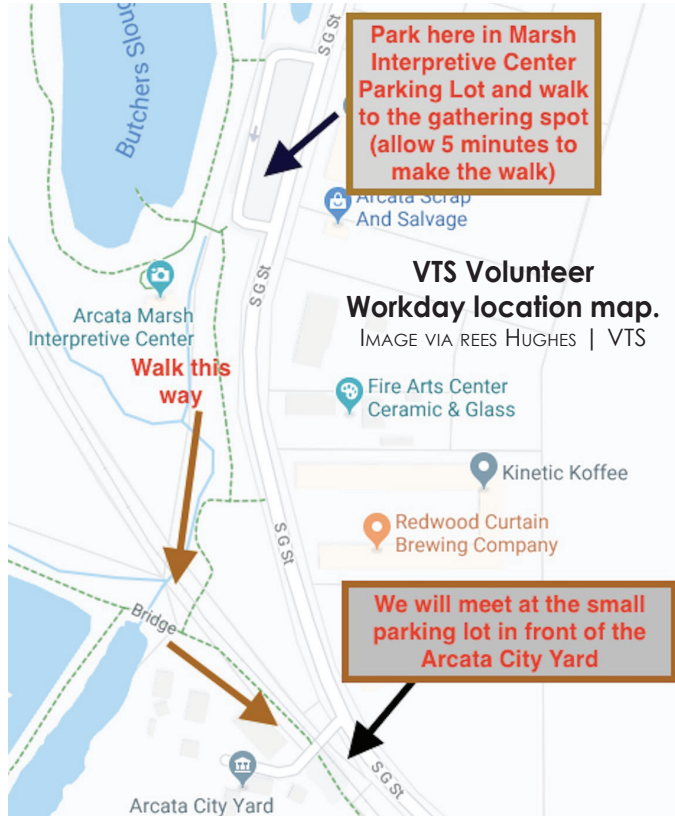

LEARN ABOUT LAGOONS Join Redwood Region Audubon Society and trip leaders Tom Lisle, Clare Golec, and Gary Friedrichsen on Sept. 29 at 9 a.m. for a birding, geological, and botanical tour of the Humboldt County coastal lagoons. Meet near the southern launch ramp off

Big Lagoon Park Road and we'll begin with a brief explanation about the evolution of coastal lagoons. From there, we'll continue to caravan to Dry, Stone, and Freshwater lagoons while keeping an eye out for waterbirds and shorebirds that inhabit these freshwater systems. Pack warm clothes, a lunch, and water. There will be some walking over uneven terrain but no walks longer than a few hundred yards. Trip happens rain or shine but canceled if winds are too combative. The trip is limited to twenty participants. Please email gary@jacobyecreek.net if you want to attend.

OFFSHORE WIND TALK 350 Humboldt invites you to a Zoom conversation about offshore wind with wind developer representatives Ciara Emery (RWE Canopy) and Erik Peckar (Vineyard Offshore). The free event occurs Monday, Sept. 30 from 7 to 8 p.m. Link to the talk at world.350.org/humboldt/upcoming-events.

VTS WORKDAY The next Volunteer Trail Stewards workday takes place Saturday, Sept. 28, toiling on the Bay Trail North and on some of the Arcata Marsh trails as part of Coastal Cleanup Day. Volunteers will do mowing and weed eating as well as invasive plant removal. Longtime volunteer Jonny Maiullo will work with those doing Coastal Clean-up work and George Ziminisky will work with volunteers dealing with invasives. Meet at the small parking lot in front of the City of Arcata Corporation Yard (see map, right). If you are driving, plan to park in the Marsh Interpretive Center parking lot on South G Street.

Valley West’s new Resilience Hub hosts inaugural community gathering

Kimberley White
COMMUNIDAD UNIDA DEL NORTE DE ARCATA
VALLEY WEST— In honor of National Hispanic/Latinx Heritage Month, (celebrated Sept. 15 through Oct. 15) and in observance of Cal Poly Humboldt’s, National Hispanic-Serving Institutions week, CUNA, Comunidad Unida del Norte de Arcata/Community United of North Arcata, hosted its first official event at our new building in Valley West Thursday, Sept. 19.

The inaugural evening event, “Tardeada Community Gathering,” featuring five Oaxacan and beyond writers, in collaboration with equity arcata and Cal Poly Humboldt, drew about 70 to 80 attendees.

The bilingual Oaxacan author reading event, complete with festive music and a delicious taquiza (Mexican taco buffet) and catered by Los Gilles was a huge success.

All under one roof, for the first time, was Latinos Unidos, LatinoNet, Humboldt County Promotores, Centro del Pueblo, Nuestra Comunidad, Cámara de Comercio (new upcoming Latinx Chamber of Commerce), and of course CUNA.

Coordinator Fernando Paz said

RCEA | Mix of nuclear, hydro

If the agency continues its status quo power mix, it will have only 83 percent green power by 2026.

There will also be a financial shortfall under that scenario, of $4.7 million in 2025, although 2026 is projected to see a $2.5 million surplus.

Accepting the nuclear power and augmenting it with hydroelectric power will meet the goal and give the agency a $1 million surplus in 2026.

Another option is to add hydroelectric power to the energy mix and turn down the nuclear energy. Doing that will get the agency to 100 percent green energy by 2026, with a $40,000 deficit following a $6.8 million shortfall in 2025.

The board’s staff said if the Diablo Canyon allotment is accepted, it will provide “roughly” 6.6 percent of the agency’s power load.

But RCEA Vice-Chair Scott Bauer, a Eureka city councilmember, noted nuclear power’s radioactive flaw.

“I can’t support nuclear because if we care about future generations, we’re gonna have to deal with hot material, radioactive material that lasts forever, essentially,” he said.

Boardmember and Humboldt County Supervisor Natalie Arroyo said if ratepayers are going to pay for the nuclear power anyway, they might as well benefit from it. “It’s another one of those ‘hold your nose and maybe do it for fiscal reasons’ type of decisions,” she continued.

She added that if “our customers just cannot support nuclear even under these circumstances, I feel that’s an important consideration.”

But Arroyo differentiated between accepting power from an existing nuclear plant and taking it from a new one, saying, “Under these circumstances, I would be inclined to accept it.”

But a counter-argument is that accepting the nuclear power encourages it to continue or expand. The decision is on the RCEA board’s agenda at its meeting this week.

Projects | BMX park, 2.8 MW photovoltaic array

They include the need for maintenance and the potential for escalating the presence of homeless encampments.

Commissioners discussed adding a maintenance condition, with Commissioner Peggy O’Neill saying that doing so is important “so it doesn’t fall off the map and become overgrown with people spray-painting it and whatever else they do.”

Caltrans project engineers and managers said maintenance will indeed be done and the agency will respond to public complaints.

But during a public comment session, two nearby property owners had doubts about that.

They talked of holes in fencing along the existing route and overgrown brush, although one said Caltrans sends crews out to clear brush when requested.

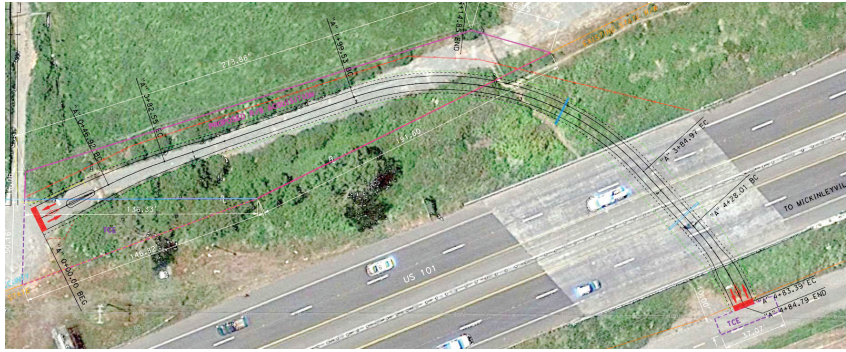

Some commissioners also had safety concerns and supported requiring lighting, particularly through the underpass.

There was talk of also requiring Caltrans to submit an annual report on its maintenance and track record of responding to complaints.

But Planning Director John Ford advised against that, saying requiring adherence to a maintenance “performance standard” will do.

He said if Caltrans doesn’t stick to it, it would be a permit violation that triggers code enforcement.

Commissioners approved the permit with the brush and fencing maintenance condition plus a requirement to install lighting in the undercrossing.

TRAIL ROUTE The new trail connects Heindon and Wymore roads in North Arcata via the existing Boyd Draw Bridge tunnel under U.S. Highway 101, circumventing Giuntoli Lane. IMAGE VIA COUNTY OF HUMBOLDT

Commissioner Lorna McFarlane recused herself from the discussion and the vote without explanation.

General Plan Check on MCSD BMX park

The commission also reviewed a McKinleyville recreation project for General Plan conformance.

The McKinleyville Community Services District is proposing construction of a three-acre BMX bicycle racing track, basketball court, pickleball court and bathroom at the intersection of Washington Avenue and School Road.

MCSD General Manager Pat Kaspari said the planned 10-foot wide bike track is also “the most elegant way” to provide a Washington Ave./School Rd. bicycle and pedestrian connection.

The project will cost $2.8 million.

There was some discussion and debate on the project’s amount of parking but Commissioner Iver Skavdal questioned its relevance, as only confirmation of General Plan conformance was up for a decision.

And it was made unanimously.

Sun power project

The commission also approved a project that gives the county’s quest to transition to 100 percent green energy a 2.8 megawatt boost.

The permit approval allows construction of a photovoltaic solar power generation facility on an 11-acre agricultural parcel in the Alton area.

Two limited liability companies, one under an international parent company, EPDR Renewable Energy, are advancing the project.

Senior planner Steve Lazar said a primary concern – potential conversion of agricultural land – is being addressed by requiring continued agricultural operations.

It’s an approach the county’s used before, when similar projects on Hatchery Road in Blue Lake and Foster Avenue in the Arcata Bottom area were approved in 2021 and 2022.

Solar power arrays will occupy seven acres of the 11-acre site and space in between the photovoltaic panels will be used for grazing and beekeeping, Lazar said.

Billboard | Owner gives up

But Caltrans requires non-conforming billboard to be repaired within 60 days of being damaged.

The OutFront Media billboard was blown over in a storm last January. It missed Caltrans’ 60-day repair deadline but was given an extension.

The new repair deadline is Sept. 26 but on Aug. 12, OutFront asked Caltrans to rescind the permit request.

In its letter to the agency, the company didn’t explain why it was no longer seeking a rebuild permit.

Atkins-Salazar

the participants transitioned to longer-term housing.

During her term, she says, community partners added over 180 units of affordable housing, completed Shay Park its new basketball court, table tennis and Ninja Warrior Playground, renovated Redwood Park Playground and added a bicycle pump track, upgraded several trails in the Arcata Community Forest, developed and adopted a Complete Street Policy to enable safe use and support mobility for all users.

Emboldened by her portfolio of projects fulfilled, she’s ready to tackle some intractable problems. One is safer streets, working to find ways to slow down traffic and make streets safer for all modes of transportation. “And of course,” she said, “more housing of all types.”

Much needed is an economic development plan to attract and retain businesses. “Many of our small businesses are struggling and we need to figure out how to better support them,” Atkins-Salazar said.

She backs more new development in Valley West, as well as the long-promised Arcata dog park.

She’s a big supporter of Measure H, the 3/4¢ sales tax increment. “These types of votes are some of the most difficult for me because I know that many of those in our community are struggling, and even a small raise in sales tax will have impacts,” Atkins-Salazar said. “However, I am also responsible for ensuring that we have enough funds to run the programs that our community desires such as sidewalks, bike lanes, transit, roads and trails; emergency and climate change response; and mental health response to crisis. For these reasons I am supporting Measure H and I encourage the voters of Arcata to the same.”

She declines to self-grade her performance on the council. “Over the past four years I have worked extremely hard in my position on the City Council,” she said. “There have been many opportunities for learning and growth, which I have taken advantage of and enjoyed. As I have been out canvassing and talking to people, I have found most of them to be happy with the direction of our city. I am proud of the work we have accomplished but I will let the people of Arcata be the ones to assign me my grade!”

formance on the council. “Over the past four years I have worked extremely hard in my position on the City Council,” she said. “There have been many opportunities for learning and growth, which I have taken advantage of and enjoyed. Daggett not very well skilled people there that are making some pretty important decisions for the city and that’s why we need the community more involved, because these people that are making decisions don’t even have any experience themselves.”

He claims councilmembers don’t do their homework, as exemplified by a councilmember at one point asking staff for clarification on a Wastewater Treatment Plant issue.

“I’ve been involved for over two and a half years of going to all the planning commission meetings, the City Council meetings, the Coastal Element, I’ve addressed the coastal commission, you know, so I’m probably the one person that knows quite a bit about the diversity of what we’re facing with it,” Daggett said. “I’m just kind of shocked sometimes that some of these biggest decisions, no one has even read, you know, hundreds of pages, hundreds of hours of work at the Coastal Commission puts out.”

These grave flaws cast a pall over civic processes, he says, from the recently passed GAP and GP2045 to the current fire Standards of Coverage study, to the ongoing studies surrounding future wastewater needs. Those processes, he says, are as problematic as that which resulted in GAP and GP2045 passage.

He considers it scandalous that denser residential housing was approved before the fire coverage study is available.

“The problem I had with their decision is that they weren’t willing to wait a few more months for that to come out, because bottom line is really it’s gonna be all about money, too.”

In that regard, Daggett foresees a monstrous price tag for adequate fire coverage, possibly foisted off on everyday citizens rather than those doing the building. He expects all the stakeholders, including Cal Poly Humboldt, to kick in, but predicts trouble.

“And who is going to pay?” he asks. “It’s like, I don’t think the taxpayers are really going to be like too excited about whatever that number is – it’s gonna be a huge number.”

Daggett faults the city for not hiring an architect to ascertain how much compatible housing might be built in infill areas. He is confident though, that sufficient housing could be created to address the housing shortage without resorting to multi-story buildings. But how?

“Because we have a different design,” he said, though details of the dense housing that avoids multiple floors aren’t forthcoming. “It doesn’t have to be height,” he insists. “I never said no tall buildings. I never said that.”

Virtually all questions elicit gloomy, meandering jeremiads about City Hall neglect and dereliction, rich in the familiar anecdotes and citations frequently heard among his remarks to the council and Planco.

But he assures that he can work cooperatively with those staffers and councilmembers whose values, diligence and basic competence he disparages on a near-weekly basis.

Daggett opposes Measure H, the proposed 3/4¢ sales tax increase. “I have been talking to business owners and the public, and people are hurting now from cost of living, food, PG&E, almost everything,” he said. “My position is at this time is a no on a sales tax increase.”

He says he has no conflicts of interest preventing him from doing council business, and that he will be able to satisfy all the time-consuming duties of office, from assimilating staff reports and contracts to making public appearances.

Told he can send along any post-interview afterthoughts for inclusion in this article, Daggett suggests that he be sent a draft copy for him to personally update. With that offer declined, he later submits traditional candidate-style comments more consistent with his written offerings that read, in part:

“My goals and visions for the future of the City of Arcata are the following.

“Environmental Justice in Local Planning and Sustainable Development

“City Planning and Infrastructure

“Housing Affordability, and Transparent Governance

“I will use my professional experience and educational background in environmental and architectural design to create a vibrant urban city plan for Arcata.”

Freedomhowler

as the recently approved Gateway Area Plan, Freedomhowler needs more information, but is confident that he can incorporate the arts into the mix.

“I would want to get a greater sense of what the community feels about that particular plan, but I think it is a method that we could grow and expand,” he said. “I can see this, you know, engaging culture and arts and community, then we should go forward with that plan.”

As for Measure H, the proposed 3/4¢ sales tax increment, he remains open-minded.

“I will be attending future City Council meetings and getting more information about the pros and cons of where exactly the money will be going to and if there’s not other ways to raise the money. But I’m not presently decided on how I’m going to vote on that, but with every decision as a council member, I feel like I should reach out to the community and see how the help the temperature is about all that any topic.”

Similar good intentions and hopeful generalities surround Freedomhowler’s views on town-gown relations.

“I think that both have a lot of work to do, and there’s a lot of opportunity to work in partnership, as a that educational university system is very valuable in what it offers and to our community and, you know, as long as there’s a connection between what the downtown businesses can offer to the university and what the university can offer in terms of like tourism and bringing the students into the community. I think that it there’s so much potential for positive growth and integration.”

All in all, there are few issues in play before the city that Freedomhowler feels couldn’t be improved with more dancing, juggling and coming together under festive circumstances.

“I think my interest in the entertainment business will only help whatever the council needs,” Freedomhowler said.

there’s probably more homeless people in Arcata.’”

“We got two Project Homekeys done that have housed over 200 people in Arcata now” she said. “People get mad because they come from all over the county, but it’s like we need to realize that it’s a county effort too, and that everybody really needs to kind of pitch in and build housing.”

She’s confident that she can continue the successes of Gateway Area Plan and General Plan 2045 passage, among other accomplishments.

“So many successes,” she said. “Definitely some meetings were tough, but I think I learned a lot from that and by the end, we were facilitating great study sessions and getting a lot done.”

She backs Measure H, the proposed 3/4¢ sales tax increment. “I think it makes sense,” she said. “Arcata’s behind Eureka on sales tax increases. We haven’t had one in a while and with these ARPA funds running out, we got so used to a lot of the services or these programs that we built, like the Community Ambassador program, for example. People love it and want to see it expanded, but we don’t have the funding for it and if we want to continue to be able to offer these, you know, great programs and services, we need a little a little more money coming in.”

Regarding the Arcata City Council’s occasional foreign policy efforts, she sees value in speaking to issues outside city or even national borders. “I feel like it’s almost like a form of healing or understanding for people to just see that, yeah, this person that I elected gives a shit about the same thing that I do,” she said. “And it goes beyond Israel and Palestine to just the violence of the United States all over the world and historically and up to today, and just how much money we spend on our military while people are our starving here in our community.”

“This violence cannot continue and, you know, our weapons can’t support it for, you know, Hamas and Israel alike.” She notes that Arcata’s evenhanded cease fire resolution also called for hostage release.

Schaefer thought the Siemens Hall occupation was “very poorly handled by the Cal Poly administration.”

Schaefer enjoys working with city staff and her council colleagues, and would like the chance to carry on doing so. “I think that we’ve done a really good job the last four years,” she said. “We have a council that really gels together, really works well together and represents a really diverse range of viewpoints and backgrounds and different folks in the community.”

“Yeah, continuity. Finish the job.”

see reforms to K Street carried out expeditiously, plus some “quick-build” projects such as protected bike lanes. She laments the relative isolation of Valley West, hemmed in as it is with major, pedestrian-hostile roads and freeways.

That’s why Serna is excited about the audacious Reconnecting Arcata plan to build a land bridge over U.S. Highway 101 between Cal Poly Humboldt and central Arcata.

“I think it’s an absolutely wonderful idea,” she said, noting that construction is possibly a decade away. “What a gift to have more space given back to the city to to put things in like housing and new businesses.”

Is Arcata doing enough to address climate change and sea level rise? “Can there ever be enough?” she asks. “I do look forward to seeing ways that we can create resiliency for this city.”

She’s OK with Arcata weighing in on global matters. “I think that it’s long been in the spirit of Arcata to think globally, think outside of ourselves, to think about how we kind of play a larger piece,” she said. “So I don’t I don’t disagree with with it, especially if it’s being asked of the council by the residents, like like we saw with the ceasefire resolution. That was probably one of the, or some of the closest things that we get to see [that reflect] direct democracy.”

She didn’t like the way Cal Poly responded to the Siemens Hall occupation. “I would have hoped that they would have handled it differently,” she said.

Serna notes the transformation of businesses on the Plaza since COVID, and sees value in mixing up the kinds of bizzes on the square.

“I think it’s been pretty exciting to see the new things that have been brought in,” she said. “I’m very excited to see the future reiterations of businesses that come through and I’m happy to see that new businesses have been able to find their footing.”

Serna assures that other than possible future proximity issued due to home ownership, she has no conflicts of interest that would require her to sit out major City Council decisions.

“I’m not an official member of any of any organizations that work with the city and I fortunately get to own my home, but it’s the only property that I own in the city,” she said.

Will she have time to read all the staff reports, contracts, personnel matters, make the public appearances, the liaison meetings? “Yes,” she said. “I have time and would make time.”

buildings can be smoothly integrated. “I really networked and I have a good relationship with the new developers in our town,” Stillman said. “They’re responsive. I feel as though we can work well with them to figure out how to fit things together and make them work.”

Her commitment to housing is personal, having used her means to singlehandedly create some 28 moderate-cost apartments in Arcata, many through rehabilitation of older buildings that need upgrading. “I’ve always tried to increase housing, and have done so in any historic projects I’ve done or on the Plaza downtown – increasing residential,” she said.

On transportation and other issues, Stillman routinely bedazzles her council colleagues with historic callbacks from decades ago. The freeway-covering Reconnecting Arcata land bridge inspires just such a reminiscence in terms of abating U.S. Highway 101’s damage to Arcata, and it fires her imagination.

“I’m so happy that back in the ’70s, we were able to scale the freeway down to two lanes on either side expanding to three, instead of having three lanes in process right now expandable to four, which would have made a much wider swath through Arcata and taken out a lot more buildings,” she said.

“But I’m excited about Reconnecting Arcata. Maybe that’ll be a place to build an elementary school, and it could be different – maybe be multi-floored, maybe use the [Cal Poly] campus library. Maybe you would have some of the sports fields or a park area which the school could use, and it could become the new transit center for Arcata.”

She’s grateful for former President Tom Jackson and his key role in the university’s polytechnic transformation. “Now that took a lot of concentration, and it also took a lot of work in order for us to be able to get funding in order to build new dorms, to upgrade our buildings on campuses, etc.,” she said. “And I applaud him for that.”

Measure H, Stillman says, “is something that I think it’s really important for us to have.” “Then we will be able to maintain some of the programs we have now.”

“I would like to continue to make a difference,” Stillman summarized. “I know I’m older, but I do believe that I am not stuck in my age and that I’m always thinking about the future and future things. And when I was on the council in the ’70s, I used to think about what Arcata would look like for my grandchildren. They’re now 21 and 24 years old, and I think of the Arcata we have developed for them is the good one. As they grow older and have children, we can make Arcata even better for everyone.”

tions about prosaic matters such as town-gown relations, all rhetorical roads lead to tyranny.

“I’m down on HSU-Cal Poly,” she said. “I don’t like their ambitions to expand their enrollment to what I consider to be an unreasonable amount of people considering the existing size of our community now. I feel like, you know, they ambition is to really sort of just take over Arcata and make it a city of HSU, Humboldt Cal Poly or whatever, and I don’t like that.”

“I feel like they’re in indoctrination institution, and I would like to also make note in what you write that out of all the colleges and universities in the whole United States, there’s only 20 that still have a vaccine mandate, and HSU Cal Poly is one of them,” she said. “Granted it’s only for the students that live on campus, and I think that’s criminal.”

Quillman sees the COVID “pandemic” as an excuse to strip citizens of their freedoms and rights, including their guns. “I am a freedom fighter and I fight for the freedom for all of us in our community, our county, our state, our country, our world, and I will not stop until I die,” she said.

Seemingly unrelated contemporary phenomena like the climate change and sea level rise, digital ID and currency, 5G technology – even the #MeToo movement – play a role in distracting, dehumanizing and disenfranchising the populace on behalf of distant, diabolical puppetmasters.

“I mean, it’ll be like a global monarchy and the rest of us are friggin’ peasants, OK?” she asserts.

Formerly an ardent Bernie Sanders supporter, Quillman voted for Donald Trump in 2020 because he withdrew the U.S. from the World Health Organization saying it was under the “total control” of China.

“I think that we need to restructure our medical system. I think it’s totally been taken over by Big Pharma and big business,” she said. “I don’t go to doctors, OK? I avoid them like the plague.”

“I would say once again, the best thing that can happen for our economy is people stop complying with nefarious orders from state and federal governments that are basically beholden to this global agenda. And until we stop complying with that, in math, here in our little county and our little city, there is no security for any of us, and we’re on our way to losing all of our freedom.”

“I really care about what’s happening and that’s why I’m running,” Quillman said. “That’s why I will run every two years, whether I’m elected or not, OK? Because somehow people need to wake up, that’s all.”

❖ EXIT THEATRE

‘Went to Lunch, Never Returned’

EXIT THEATRE
ARCATA PLAZA – The Exit Theatre in Arcata presents Jeff DeMark performing “Went to Lunch, Never Returned, Revisited.” The shows happen Sept. 27 to Sept. 29 with Friday and Saturday shows starting at 7 p.m. and Sunday’s show at 2 p.m. Tickets are $15 and can be purchased at theexittheatre.org.

Jeff DeMark

DeMark performed the show at the EXIT Theatre in April to sold out houses and acclaim. The Times-Standard wrote, “Jeff DeMark seems to have more fun on stage than any other Humboldt County performer...he had the audience mesmerized with his stories and humor.”

DeMark just returned from performing the show in San Francisco at Bird and Beckett Books.

DeMark debuted “Went to Lunch” at Dell’Arte’s Mad River Festival to acclaim and toured the comedic show widely, performing all over Humboldt County, in San Francisco, at Theater X in Milwaukee, Brave Hearts Theater in Madison, at New York City’s Knitting Factory and many other theaters and venues in Oregon, Minneapolis and California.

The Wisconsin State Journal in Madison, Wisconsin named it the “Best theatrical show in 1995. DeMark is a riveting performer with humorous and insightful stories to tell.”

For these shows multi-instrumentalist Laura Black will provide musical accompaniment and sound effects as she did in April. The Exit Theatre is located on the Arcata Plaza at 890 G St., Arcata.

Vanya and Sonia and Masha and Spike

EXIT THEATRE
ARCATA PLAZA – EXIT Theatre will present Christopher Durang’s Tony Award winning comedy Vanya and Sonia and Masha and Spike in Arcata from Nov. 8 through Nov. 24.

Vanya and Sonia and Masha and Spike will be directed by Ruthi Engelke with Daniel Baer as Vanya, Doranna Benker-Gilkey as Sonia, Heather Petersteiner Yoda as Masha, AJ Andrew Hempstead as Spike, Savanna Padilla as Nina, and Christina Augello as Cassandra. Stage manager is Tasheena Evenson with sound design is by Tammy Rae Scott, lighting design by Mobius and graphics by Carissa Pinnell.

The Los Angeles Times said Durang’s comedy “will make you cry till you laugh” and the New York Times said “baby-boomer misery confronts a funnier future.” The play won the Tony Award for best play in 2013.

Marsh show features Provolt

FRIENDS OF THE ARCATA MARSH
ARCATA MARSH – During September and October, paintings by Jeff Pro-volt will be on display at the Arcata Marsh Interpretive Center. Shows featuring local art and photography are sponsored by Friends of the Arcata Marsh (FOAM). The Interpretive Center, located at 569 South G Street in Arcata, is open to the public Monday from 1 to 5 p.m. and Tuesday through Sunday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The following is a statement from Provolt:

“I am a lifelong resident of Humboldt County. I worked in the woods and the mills for various lumber companies, operating all sorts of equipment. Extra money came in from commercial and fine art. I’m also a lifelong musician, playing steel guitar and other stringed instruments daily since the age of 8.

“When the mills started closing, I turned to printing T-shirts for the tourist industry and local events such as the Kinetic Sculpture Race and Clam Beach Run. But the deadline nature of a print shop didn’t leave me much time for art. After 30 years, I recently retired and returned to painting. I like to capture images of the North Coast, both natural and man-made.”

PASTELS ON THE PLAZA Northcoast Children’s Services presents the 37th annual Pastels on the Plaza on Saturday, Oct. 5 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. The first Saturday in October is the day families, artists, and sponsors gather on the Arcata Plaza for a magical art show. The sidewalk is transformed into a gallery of art with a riot of color! This benefit for Northcoast Children’s Services is supported by sponsors by making a donation of $150 or $250 for a square of sidewalk art created by local volunteer artists. To sponsor or create art for this year’s Pastels, please visit ncsheadstart.org/pastels-on-the-plaza/ or call (707) 822-7206 for more information.

The grim musical tale of Sweeney Todd

NORTH COAST REPERTORY THEATRE
EUREKA – The sixth production in the first season of The 5th & D Street Theater, North Coast Repertory Theatre presents Sweeney Todd: The Demon Barber of Fleet Street, the thrilling musical with music and lyrics by Stephan Sondheim and book by Hugh Wheeler.

Sweeney Todd opened Sept. 20 and continues every Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. through Sept. 19 and plays Sundays at 2 p.m. through Sept. 20.
This classic musical invites you to embrace the bloody! The story follows Sweeney Todd as he returns to London after being wrongfully imprisoned for years, only to discover the life he knew is now gone. To get his revenge he partners with a lowly pie shop owner to make meat pies out of murder most foul!

Directors Nannette Voss and Isabel Semlar tell this devilish tale with the help of Ensemble Vocal Director Stacy Young and Choreographer Shawn Wagner.
Supporting this production are stage managers Kelly Hughes and Cat Noel-Veatch. This star studded cast includes Alex Benn as Sweeney Todd, Andrea Zvaleko as Mrs.Lovett, Joe Cherry as Judge Turpin, Rigel Schmitt as Beadle Bamford, Marina Benson as Johanna, River Keller as Anthony, Meaghan Sharrard as Toby, Holly Portman as Beggar Woman and Filip Ambroski as Pirelli.

The 5th & D St Theater is located at 300 Fifth Street, Eureka.
Purchase tickets online at ncrt.net. For reservations, group rates, or more information call (707) 442-NCRT (442-6278) or email ncrtboxoffice@gmail.com.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF MARC PICQUENDAR CASE NO.: PR2400254
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of:
MARC PICQUENDAR
A Petition for Probate has been filed by NICOLAS MARGOT in the Superior Court of California, County of HUMBOLDT. The Petition for Probate requests that: NICOLAS MARGOT be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.
The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take any actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.
A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows:
Date: OCT. 10, 2024
Time: 9:30 A.M.
Dept.: 4
Address of court: Superior Court of California, County of Humboldt, 825 Fifth Street, Eureka, CA, 95501.
COURT MAY BE CLOSED TO THE PUBLIC DUE TO THE COVID-19 PANDEMIC. PLEASE VISIT <https://www.humboldt.courts.ca.gov/> FOR INFORMATION ON HOW TO PARTICIPATE IN AN ONLINE VIDEO HEARING.
If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.
If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.
You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a formal Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER:
YOU ARE IN DEFAULT UNDER A DEED OF TRUST DATED 12/19/2005. UNLESS YOU TAKE ACTION TO PROTECT YOUR PROPERTY, IT MAY BE SOLD AT A PUBLIC SALE. IF YOU NEED AN EXPLANATION OF THE NATURE OF THE PROCEEDING AGAINST YOU, YOU SHOULD CONTACT A LAWYER.
Trustor: ERIC H RAFTER AN UNMARRIED MAN AND LESLEY M TELLIER AN UNMARRIED WOMAN
Duly Appointed Trustee: Western Progressive, LLC
Deed of Trust Recorded 01/04/2006 as Instrument No. 2006-220-24 in book ---, page--- and of Official Records in the office of the Recorder of Humboldt County, California,
Date of Sale: 10/18/2024 at 10:00 AM
Place of Sale: AT THE FRONT ENTRANCE TO THE COUNTY COURTHOUSE 825 5TH STREET, EUREKA, CA 95501
Estimated amount of unpaid balance, reasonably estimated costs and other charges: $ 227,862.31
THE TRUSTEE WILL SELL AT PUBLIC AUCTION TO HIGHEST BIDDER FOR CASH, CASHIER'S CHECK DRAWN ON A STATE OR NATIONAL BANK, A CHECK DRAWN BY A STATE OR FEDERAL CREDIT UNION, OR A CHECK DRAWN BY A STATE OR FEDERAL SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATION, A SAVINGS ASSOCIATION OR SAVINGS BANK SPECIFIED IN SECTION 5102 OF THE FINANCIAL CODE AND AUTHORIZED TO DO BUSINESS IN THIS STATE:
All right, title, and interest conveyed to and now held by the trustee in the hereinafter described property under and pursuant to a Deed of Trust described as:
More fully described in said Deed of Trust.
Street Address or other common designation of real property: 530 WARREN CREEK ROAD, ARCATA, CA 95521
A.P.N.: 516-251-012-000, 516-251-014-000
The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the street address or other common designation, if any, shown above.
The sale will be made, but without covenant or warranty, expressed or implied, regarding title, possession, or encumbrances, to pay the remaining principal sum of the note(s) secured by the Deed of Trust with interest thereon, as provided in said note(s), advances, under the terms of said Deed of Trust, fees, charges and expenses of the Trustee and of the trusts created by said Deed of Trust. The total amount of the unpaid balance of the obligation secured by the property to be sold and reasonable estimated costs, expenses and advances at the time of the initial publication of the Notice of Sale is: $ 227,862.31.
Note: Because the Beneficiary reserves the right to bid less than the total debt owed, it is possible that at the time of the sale the opening bid may be less than the total debt.
If the Trustee is unable to convey title for any reason, the successful bidder's sole and exclusive remedy shall be the return of monies paid to the Trustee, and the successful bidder shall have no further recourse.
The beneficiary of the Deed of Trust has executed and delivered to the undersigned a written request to commence foreclosure, and the undersigned caused a Notice of Default and Election to Sell to be recorded in the county where the real property is located.
NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on this property.
NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (866)-960-8299 or visit this Internet Web site <https://www.altisource.com/loginpage.aspx> using the file number assigned to this case 2024-00246-CA. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale.
NOTICE TO TENANT: You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction, if conducted after January 1, 2021, pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call (877)-518-5700, or visit this internet website <https://www.realtybid.com/>, using the file number assigned to this case 2024-00246-CA to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid, by remitting the funds and affidavit described in Section 2924m(c) of the Civil Code, so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase.
